DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 2-22 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on 1/03/2006.
2. Applicant's election of Species VII pertaining to Figure 8 with Claims 1, 23-44 read on the elected species in the reply filed on 1/03/2006 is acknowledged. However, it is noted that Claims 36-40 read upon Species I, not the elected species. Therefore, these claims also have been withdrawn from consideration. Applicant states that he traverses the election of species requirement as both the search and examination of all claims can be made without serious burden. Examiner notes that the elements of Claims 2-22 do not belong to the class of electrostatic discharge system, 361/220, but to the class of 280 and would require extensive searching in class 280, which would place a burden upon the Examiner. Furthermore, it is noted that once an independent generic claim has found to be allowable, its withdrawn dependent claims will be subsequently rejoined and no longer withdrawn from consideration. 37 CFR 1.141.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 2836

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1 and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ware (US 2,280,327). Ware discloses an electrostatic discharge system for a road vehicle (Figure 1-5) comprising at least one electrically conducting conductor element 13 in electrical contact with an electrically conducting part of the vehicle body; actuation means 10 mountable to said vehicle, said actuation means adapted for selectively and reversibly moving said conductor element between a deployed position and a retracted position, wherein in said deployed position said conductor element is in contact with the ground such as to provide an electrical pathway for electric charge from said electrically conducting part of the vehicle body to the ground, and wherein said retracted position said conductor element is distanced from the ground such as to interrupt said electrical pathway; and control means 14 operatively connected said actuating means and to a user interface, adapted for controlling operation of said actuation means responsive to an interaction with said user interface (Column 2, lines 53-55, Column 3, lines 1-7).

The recited steps of method claim 43 would necessarily be performed when using the electrostatic discharge system disclosed in Claim 1. Therefore, please see the rejection for Claim 1 recited above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 23 and 34-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ware (US 2,280,327) in view of Wilson et al. (US 3,148,833). Ware does not disclose that said actuation means are powered by suitable power means including any one of pneumatic, electrical or hydraulic power means. Wilson discloses an actuation means (see Figure 10) powered by suitable power means including any one of pneumatic, electrical or hydraulic. It would have been obvious to those skilled in art at the time the invention was made to modify Ware's system with an actuation means powered by suitable power means as taught by Wilson, because powered actuation means facilitates more operational convenience, control and speed. Regarding Claim 34, Ware discloses a housing mountable to an underside of a said vehicle (Column 2, lines 8-12, 19-23). Regarding Claim 35, Ware discloses the system, further comprising an electrical conductor 14 fixed to the electrically conducting part of the vehicle and to the conductor element (see Figures 1, 4).

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 24-33, 41-42, and 44 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. Claims 24-33 recite an actuation means including an electric motor, which is not taught by the Prior Art of record. Claims 41-42 recite a computer programmable user interface in cooperation with the control means, which is not taught by the Prior art of record. Claim 44 recites a method step of providing a ground path for the vehicle, associated with operation of the handbrake system of the vehicle, which is not taught by the Prior Art of record.
